Rough Description: As indicated above it takes about 2 hours to drive from Taupo to the car park (WF1) at the end of Goodwin Road; all times are taken from Taupo Police Station on the Domain. The walk is best described as moderate plus with an almost non-stop, unrelenting climb from the word go till the crest above the top of the Wairere waterfall is reached. Most of this path is well groomed, not overly steep and there are several sections of steps and ladders, with platforms, large rocks and boardwalks. Once at the top the terrain is, at first, a well nigh level plain which can be boggy at times. The Wairere then the North tracks are followed and to reach the Puketutu Hut there is a small, poorly marked track branching off near an animal gravesite. This track takes about an hour with a slight grunt uphill. Being an out-and-back walk one can turn back at any time but the full walk requires 4 hours outwards and about 3 hours return. The final descent can be made "exciting" if the old Maori Trail down is followed – not recommended for the wary or unfit.

Detail: First of all it should be stated that the track alignment as shown on the current 50,000 scale map is not quite correct and the GPS trace shown will be more accurate. Careful study of the Google Image does show some of the stream lines not on the map.

From the car park (WP01 50masl) the first few hundred metres of path are gently sloping but soon after the bridge over the Wairere Stream (WP02 95masl) slopes increase rapidly as progress is made through the dense broad-leaf forest. After 15 minutes there is a slightly open area next to a fenced paddock; after this the serious ascending begins and a notice board indicates the junction (WP03 150masl) to the Old Maori trail going off very steeply upwards on the right – this route is not recommended.

By this time the valley which the path follows is quite narrow with very steep sides. Within 30 minutes there is a large bridge (WP04 173masl) then some wooden steps, sections of boardwalk plus some large rocks forming a natural staircase upwards – nothing too steep or difficult if taken at the correct pace. Soon, within another 5 minutes, there is a very large wooden staircase but the steps are well chosen for size and ascending is relatively easy if taken at a sensible rate. Without this staircase it would not be possible to get up the slopes here except by using technical climbing skills and equipment. (WP05 238masl). Another 5 minutes upwards reaches a small path off to the left with a notice indicating the look-out one minute away (WP06 274masl). There is a large platform here with seats etc offering views of the falls plus a good place for morning tea.

About 15 minutes above the lookout there is a notice indicating the top of the Old Maori Trail (WP07 404masl) referred to earlier. Less than 10 minutes above this feature the slope eases and the virtually level plateau area is reached with an idyllic looking, slow flowing stream (WP08 412masl) which feeds the Wairere Falls off to the left. By going minutes left parallel to the stream the platform (WP09 410masl) above the Wairere Falls is reached.

After viewing the falls and vista back-track along the river then turn left on the non-manicured track. Within minutes there is an unmarked, vague T-junction (WP10 415masl) where a turn left is made still on the Wairere Track. In total time of about 1:45min turn left at the marked "North" track (WP11 415masl). This path is less well maintained and there are muddy sections but it is virtually flat with three or four small bridges set in place by DoC and is all within superb broadleaf forest. One of these bridges (WP12 426masl) is crossed in just over 2 hours total time and it is interesting to note that these "platform" bridges (no foundations) are wired down – presumably to stop them floating away as and when the area floods. Walking becomes a bit easier from now on as the track does improve, the alignment on the ground is easier to see and the bush opens up a bit with more trees and ferns with a small stream crossing in a particularly attractive valley at about 2:17min (WP13 415masl). There is yet another low bridge at 2:30min (WP14 424masl).

Wairere falls

The winding trail through the forest does seem to go on forever with no major features until, at around 3 hours total walk time, a small grave (WP15 470masl) is found – identified by the edges being marked with punga, a small headstone feature and an animal skull – the significance of this grave is not known. At this point the North Track is left and the route crosses a small stream then starts to go uphill in a NW direction on a very poorly marked / defined track so be vigilant. This bit of a grunt up takes 40 minutes or so.

Animal gravesite

There are few features going up here but it is slightly more open in places (WP16 613masl), views to the E and W are obtained from an open area (WP17 653masl) whilst the “helipad” grassy clearing reached in just over 3:30 (WP18 650masl) is easy to spot. From here it is a matter of a couple of minutes to the Puketutu Hut (WP19 655masl).

This is a real back-country hut with three sleeping benches (more at a squeeze), ample work-bench area, wood-burner plus a firewood supply, a crude roof-water collection system and the inevitable toilet out the back. The track does continue on up the ridge past the hut and passes round near the toilet. The view out over the Tauranga area from the front door is good and makes the effort getting to the hut worthwhile. Return is on the same route.

Uphill on poorly defined track

From the hut the walk back down to the car park takes about 3 hours, but there is a variation if desired. On the descent it is possible to take a short cut by using the Old Maori Trail from WP07 down to WP03. However this route is not recommended unless you are very sure footed, plus have strong hands and arms, since the path is not maintained and use of trees and vegetation is often the only safe way of descending some of the slippery slopes. Variations of routes tramped by TTC can be found in Te Tuhi to Wairere Falls and Wairere Falls tramp descriptions.
